SSU to Display Its Many Colors

Yoav Wachsman
Flyer Staff Writer

When you go to lunch this Friday you might see a group of KotoBuke Kai Japanese dancers dancing on the patio in front of the Dinning Hall. If you have a class in Caruthers or Fulton Hall that day, do not be surprised if you come across a dance company from China preforming a colorful lion dance in Red Square. If you go pick up your mail after class at the University Center you are will probably come across a fellow playing Native African instruments when you walk under white wooden Pergola.

In fact, this Friday between 11 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. there will be seven different performances at various locations on campus, each representing a different culture.

The performances, which will occur approximately every half hour, are all a part of the Unity in the Community Multicultural Festival. The three day festival will include an array of performances, an event called Hands Around the Campus, an athletic competition organized by the Housing and Residence Life Office called Spring Olympics and a Celebration of Jewish Life.

The purpose of the festival, according to Agata Liszkowska, International Student Services Coordinator, is to "showcase the diversity we have on campus and expose the campus population to groups they had little exposure to."

Marijuana Smokers

College students who smoke marijuana daily have a harder time taking tests or remembering something just explained to them, even if they haven't smoked the drug in 24 hours, according to a new study by hospital researchers.

But whether their abilities are impaired simply from lingering effects of the drug or more seriously from longer-lasting effects on brain function still is not clear to researchers.

Two groups of college students, 65 "heavy" users who smoke pot daily and 64 "light" users who smoke two days a month, volunteered to undergo a battery of tests on their verbal abilities, attention and memory. Researchers monitored the students for 24 hours before the study began to assure that none smoked the drug during the testing period.

"The heavy users had more trouble paying attention," said Dr. Harrison G. Pope, chief of the biological psychiatry laboratory at McLean Hospital, whose study recently appeared in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The heavy users made significant, repeated mistakes in card sorting and showed reduced learning of word lists, Pope said.

"It's not so much that their memory was affected," he said. "It's that they could not pay attention to the material well enough to register the information in the first place so that it could be repeated later."

The study, funded by the National Institutes of Health, provides some of the most conclusive evidence yet that cognitive abilities are impaired more in heavy pot smokers than light smokers, even after a day's abstinence from the drug.

Despite these findings, the question still remains as to what exactly causes the impairment.

The Real World: It's Not Just For MTV Anymore

At MIT's 4th Annual Charm School, students enroll in courses like "Nerd Love," where they learn how to ask for a date. At Texas Christian University, seniors sign up for a seven-course "fine dining experience," where they pick up tips on how to eat difficult foods such as artichokes and Cornish hens. At the University of California-Santa Barbara, students scale rock walls to prepare for upcoming job interviews.

Is this how one earns a bachelor's degree in the 1990s?

While four years of discussing Plato and memorizing French vocabulary makes for a well-rounded person, it doesn't necessarily prepare students for the challenges of life after graduation: landing a job, negotiating an apartment lease, making finances, even grocery shopping. So in the past few years, numerous colleges have created intensive, innovative workshop programs to help students master real-life skills.

"We feel students are entering a complex world, a very different world from that of their parents," says Carolyn Ulrickson, director of career services at Texas Christian.

Indeed, MIT Charm School's slogan reads: "When being brilliant is not enough..."

A course called "Real World 101," taught by retired General Motors' executive George Spaulding at the College of Charleston, guides students through how to by a car, a house, insurance, and how to use a credit card wisely.

Interactive lectures in how to be a critical consumer, the pros and cons of marriage versus living single, and how to function effectively in a pluralistic society are offered top students at Augustana College in Illinois.

Of course, the biggest challenge for most diploma-seeking individuals is how to secure a job after graduation. Today's changing and uncertain job market makes that tough says college administrators.

"More kids than ever before are the first generation in their family to go to college," points out John Gardner, director of the National Resource Center for the Freshman Year and Students in Transition. "They can't get much career planning support from their families."

Passing along real-life skills is becoming an increasing concern to educators. This past January, the annual conference theme of the Association of American Colleges and Universities was "Work & Learning, Creating New Connections."

Is academia becoming a mere boot camp for corporations? Phyllis Burst, director of career services at Muhlenberg College, suggests that colleges are experiencing "the vocationalizing of liberal arts." Rising tuition costs, too, make the pure pursuit of study without a tangible job at graduation more of a luxury.

Still, most employers agree that a mix of liberal arts versus real-life experience is the best way to go. That's an area some "charm schools" are trying to address.

SSU Week to Promote Diversity

The festival is organized by the Dean of Students Office and the Office of Minority Affairs in collaboration with various students organizations who decided to pitch in. John Fields, associate dean of minority affairs, said that the festival developed out of the annual international fair in which items from other countries were displayed under the Pergola.

Student organizations as New Agenda, the Program Board, Student Government Association and others volunteered their time to help orchestrate the festival. Some of the volunteers will act as "go-fors" for the various artists. Others will distribute cards that explain the history and the significance of each performance.

In addition to the performances, Catering will serve samples of food from several countries. According to Liszkowska, Catering will serve four "comfort food items" which most students are already familiar with and four exotic items which most students have never tasted.

The festival has two objectives in mind. First, the festival will expose students to other cultures which most of them have little knowledge about. Second, it will try to promote unity on campus. Liszkowska explains that "the world is getting smaller and we need to get to know each other. People find it hard to accept what they do not know."

The organizers of the event are hoping to promote unity among the students by having students join hands together this Thursday at 12 p.m. in a circle that will stretch from Fulton Hall to Devilbiss Hall. Fields estimates that the feat will require at least 800 students. In order to accomplish the task the organizing committee has asked Nelson Butler, SSU interim president, to send letters to professors who have a class at noon. The letter asks professors to bring their students out to join the circle.

Participants in Hands Around the Campus will hold hands as the song "We Are the World" will be heard around the campus through loud speakers. After the song ends a group of students will pick up flags from various countries and will start walking around with them inside the circle.

Hands around the campus is organized by Traci Powell and other students from New Agenda. In an interview for Public Relations' Salisbury State University News, Powell said "I hope students will let their guards down and give this thing a chance."

Many students, however, are skeptical about how instrumental the event will be in promoting unity. One student who elected to remain anonymous said "that people are basically going to come, hold hands for a little while, think 'this is neat' and then go home and forget about it."

Barry King, associate dean of students, explains that "the important thing is to get students out there and get them to participate. Once the students join together then good things might start happening."

Hands Around the Campus is going to be tied in with other events in the three day festival. For instance, on Thursday volunteers will walk around and distribute stickers which students will later be able turn in to their residence assistance for points that will count towards the Spring Olympics. The T-shirts for the festival also combine the theme of Hands Around the Campus and Spring Olympics. The shirts will be worn by all the people who helped organize the festival and some will be given out throughout the week.

SSU Prepares to Dance the Night Away

Heather Crutchfield and Jim Hudson

The Salisbury State University Dance Company is warming up in preparation for their annual Spring Dance Concert. The concert, scheduled to premiere tomorrow night in Holloway Hall Auditorium, is to be an evening of professional and amateur dance performances.

At the 8 o'clock curtain, the evening will open with two student works. The first, Declivity, by two-time Showcase winner Jennifer Riddle, is a modern dance composition that explores the emotions of anxiety disorders. The other piece, performed by senior Jennifer Ruff and December graduate Will Wells, is a lyrical duet to the popular Seal song, Kiss From a Rose. These performances were selected by an outside panel of judges from the 1995 Student Dance Showcase based on "creative originality and technical excellence," said Victoria Hutchinson, the SSU Dance Company Director.

Hutchinson herself is getting into the performance with a comical, post-modern solo entitled Fruitility Rite, created by Nada Diachenko. This piece satirizes everything from ceremonious ritual to Western gunslingers and even body builders. Partially funded by the Maryland State Arts Council and the SSU Office of Grants and Sponsored Research, it includes the accompaniment of percussionist Tom Clark and the vocal talents of Vietnamese-born Phu Nguyen. Also being performed by Hutchinson is a modern dance set to the music of Japanese composer Somei Satoh called Clouds.

Hutchinson isn't the only faculty member to don dance attire for this event. Ballet instructor Mary Norton is also participating in the performance. She is premiering the piece Illuminata which is performed to the music of Enya and is dedicated to the memory of Brian Gehman. Guest faculty choreographer Deborah Ford, chair of the Department of Dance at the Cicely Tyson School of the Performing and Fine Arts in New Jersey, is scheduled to perform Samba which is the first part of a jazz dance suite that has been commissioned by the Physical Theater Project and will premiere in Germany.

Also performing in the Spring Dance Concert are guest choreographers Martina Young and Bob Rizzo who choreographed Hush and Can-Can a la Rizzo, respectively.

The hour-long dance concert will take place Wednesday, April 24 and Friday and Saturday, April 26 and 27 at 8 p.m. in the Holloway Hall auditorium. Tickets are free for Salisbury State University Students and children under 12 at the University Center information desk and at the door the night of the performance. If you are not an SSU student, ticket costs are $6 for general admission and $4 for teens and senior citizens. If you have any questions or would like more information, please contact the Dance Company at (410) 543-6353.

Salute to Ron Brown

Phi Beta Sigma fraternity Incorporated salutes the memory of Ron Brown. Throughout his life, Brown dedicated himself to bringing together people of all races through numerous social and political programs. He was chairman for Jesse Jackson's 1988 Presidential Campaign. Then in 1992, Brown chaired the National Democratic Convention thus playing a key role in the success of Bill Clinton's bid for the White House. Most recently, Brown served in another high profile position as U.S. Secretary of Commerce. As such, it was Brown's charge to oversee the welfare and growth of U.S. business domestically and internationally.

In addition to all these notable accomplishments, Brown was also a devoted husband and a loving father. He was a man respected and admired by thousands world-wide. Because of the life he lived, the lives he touched and the doors he opened, the men of the Theta Kappa Chapter of Phi Beta Sigma mourn the loss of Ron Brown. We salute the memory and achievements this progressive African-American Brother leaves behind.

understand if abilities are impaired because of the drug's "hangover" effect or as a result of "a more ominous, neurotoxic effect on the brain," Pope said.

"It is remarkable that marijuana has been consumed for thousands of years and studied for decades, yet we still don't know the answer to that fundamental question," he added.

Deborah Yurgelun-Todd, director of neuropsychology at McLean Hospital, co-conducted the study and said more research is needed.

"Only by further study of these issues can it be judged whether . . . impairment with marijuana should be considered a public health problem," she said.

A new study is planned at McLean to determine whether long-term, heavy marijuana users still have impaired abilities up to four weeks after stopping drug use.

The Past Becomes the Present with 23 Skiddoo Vintage Clothing Moves Into Salisbury's Closets

Erica Praedin
Flyer Staff Writer

Picture yourself in a nostalgic world full of crazy prints on polyester blouses, bellbottoms that stick to your hips like wet bathing suits and hundreds of dresses and skirts that will create a look only to be matched by Carol Brady herself. You've just entered 23 Skiddoo.

Owner Kristin Murray, who opened the doors of 23 Skiddoo on North Division Street in December, has acquired a vintage style of the 50's, 60's and 70's which sets 23 Skiddoo apart from a typical thrift store.

"I wanted to do something like [23 Skiddoo] for a while," said Murray, who got the idea to open a vintage store after living in other places which already had the nostalgic shops.

Murray brought the idea and her enthusiasm to Salisbury because "there wasn't anything like this down here."

Murray, 30, provides a service to eager shoppers by searching and buying the best of the worst vintage items.

"When I go to a thrift store, I expect to find one treasure in a bunch of trash," said Murray. "Hopefully, there's more [at 23 Skiddoo] than just one or two things that someone would want."

Murray, originally from Ocean City, has been shopping at thrift and vintage stores since she was a student at James Madison University in Virginia. Today, she does most of her shopping for other people rather than for her own closet.

"I pick what I like," noted Murray, "I focus on things from the 50's, 60's and 70's that are different and catch my eye."

Does the temptation to keep things for herself ever get too hard to bear?

"I try to be real particular about the things I keep," Murray said. If there is any doubt in her mind about something, it goes right on the rack to be sold.

Aside from buying her goods from other thrift stores, Murray also receives items on consignment, estate bids, customers and her travels to other cities. Though she only works in the store 30-35 hours a week, she finds herself spending just as much time searching for new stock.

23 Skiddoo doesn't just carry men and women's clothing. Within the world of vintage at the heart of Salisbury's downtown, it's difficult for customers to focus on one thing because there is so much to look at and explore.

Hats, jewelry, comic books, nostalgic collectibles and decorations line the walls and fill the cases of the cozy boutique to create an atmosphere that takes you back in time- even if you wish that polyester would remain in the decades past.

Though the shoppers at 23 Skiddoo are typically high school and college students, Murray sees a wide variety of people who desire a vintage look.

"Originally I thought it'd be a lot of college students, but older people come in too," said Murray. "Usually, anybody that wants something different comes in."

Murray thinks that vintage clothing has become more acceptable in today's styles, partly due to the fact that the clothing isn't new.

"It appeals to our generation not only because of the style, but because this is recycling," commented Murray. "We're not creating anything new. It's almost a political stance."

But when you put aside the fashion, the political stances and the "plethora of polyester," as Murray calls it, one thing still remains.

What does the store's spiffy name really mean?

"It was a saying, like a password, during prohibition for when the police would come," said Murray. "They'd say '23 Skiddoo!', which meant 'get out of here!'"

It became a hipster saying that Murray thought would fit with the vintage theme. Ironically, 23 Skiddoo will be sure to draw you in and keep you going back for more.

Correction:

11:00 classes will not be cancelled on Thursday April 25 for Hands Across Campus. It should have been stated that 11:00 classes would dismiss early to allow enough time for the entire class to walk outside and join hands. Sorry for any confusion this may have caused. -Ali

Gullapalooza '96: Bigger and Better Every Year

Erica Praedin
Flyer Staff Writer

What could be better than a day of sunshine, the aroma of delicious foods tickling your nose and a unique array of jewelry, clothing and crafts to buy? Only the sweet sounds of live music could make this day better, right?

Of course! That is why WSUR, SSU's student run radio station is bringing you Gullapalooza '96 on Saturday, May 4 in front of the Powell Dining Hall.

For its fourth annual benefit concert, WSUR will host a variety of bands from different types of musical genres such as ska, rap, alternative, rock and industrial.

The concert, which will include Soular, Element, Pop Messiah, JJ Nighttrain, The Classified, Precise Instinct, John Flywheel, Julius Bloom and Annapolis based Jimmie's Chicken Shack, will benefit the John Melvin Medical Fund.

According to WSUR General Manager Joyce Snyder, the concert was originally going to benefit the AIDS Action Foundation, but the management and the Gullapalooza committee decided to change the benefit.

"We decided it should benefit the John Melvin Medical Fund because it would benefit someone at SSU," said Snyder. "We could provide some sort of immediate help."

The John Melvin Medical Fund will benefit SSU student John Melvin, who needs over $75,000 for a kidney and pancreas transplant, but doesn't have medical insurance.

Gullapalooza '95 raised about $1,000 for the Big Brothers/Big Sisters Foundation. This year, concert organizers hope to raise even more.

Because Gullapalooza is a free event, WSUR has looked to local businesses for donations and advertising.

Concert organizers have gained much support from area businesses such as Pepsi, 95.9 "The Coast," and Pickles, who have donated their products and services to be sold during the festival in hopes of raising money for the medical fund.

Free psychic readings by a visiting fortune teller, courtesy of SSU's Program Board, will be offered to anyone who attends the event.

Snyder feels that with every year, Gullapalooza becomes a bigger and better event.

"Every year Gullapalooza grows," she said. "More people become more familiar with it and want to be involved."

Barb Gallagher, WSUR program director and singer for JJ Nighttrain, is excited to be a part of this years concert.

Senior Kristie Dooley, director of advertising and promotions at WSUR, thinks that Gullapalooza is the one event that brings SSU together as a whole.

"It's not Greek or UAS. It's a non-discriminatory environment with good music, a day in the sun and no restrictions," commented Dooley. "WSUR and the organizations of SSU can come together for a good cause."

Aaron Haslinger, music director of WSUR, said that Gullapalooza provides a good time even though it involves a lot of hard work.

"It's the final culmination of WSUR's work form the whole year," said Haslinger.

According to Snyder, students should have no problem coming out to show their support.

"Just step outside on May 4, and follow the music."

Women's Rugby Romps Past Millersville

Jeff Brameyer
Sports Editor

The Millersville University women's rugby team started their day off by getting lost and showing up an hour late for their match against the Salisbury women. The day didn't get much better as the Millersville women probably wished they never got the right directions as the SSU women dominated them up and down the field winning by a score of 29-0.

You might have thought that the hour lay-off would have been a distraction for SSU who had to sit and wait patiently for Millersville to arrive. That was not the case however because, "They were so far up for this game that even if they came down a little bit they'd still be psyched," said head coach Tim Reading.

As a matter of fact, the team played, "Their best game in three years," according to Reading as they dominated the game on both sides of the ball throughout the entire match.

SSU drove deep into Millersville territory often during the first half but they often were stopped just short of the try zone. Until, late in the half Laurie Tsalderis picked up a loose ball that popped out of an SSU scrum and drove herself past three Millersville players to down to the ball in the try zone and put SSU on the board. Michelle Manner completed the try with the extra kick to put SSU up 7-0 going into halftime.

After the halftime break, SSU took complete control of the game and seemed to score at will against the much overmatched visitors. Stephanie Tobash started the second half scoring for Salisbury early on. SSU got the ball off a Millersville scrum and brought the ball out to the sidelines to Tobash. Tobash drove to the end line and the SSU pack drove her over the line into the try zone for the second score of the day. Manner again converted the extra kick to put SSU up 14-0.

Manner was fabulous all day long for SSU. She converted 3 of 4 extra kicks and kicked a penalty kick through the uprights to put SSU up 17-0. She also scored a try on the day.

Shawna Lidsky, a SSU basketball player as well, kept the scoring going on with a try of her own to put SSU up 24-0. After an SSU scrum Tsalderis picked up a loose ball and while getting hit passed off to Lidsky who plowed through a few defenders to down the ball in the try zone.

It was this type of team play that led to the SSU domination all day long. "We had 15 players, and they played as one," said Reading, "There were no individuals on this team today and it showed with how well they played."

SSU closed out the scoring with a beautiful team play that was finished by Manner scoring her first career try. SSU drove deep and brought the ball from one side of the field to the other with flawless passing that left Tanner all alone for the try as the baffled Millersville defenders were left nowhere in sight.

This was the one and only home game for the SSU women and the game meant a lot to the players, especially the seniors in their last home game. "This meant a lot for the older girls and the people who have been with it (the team) and believed in it from the start," said senior Nikki Bethke.

SSU completed the day with the B side winning its match as well by a score of 17-5. Trys were scored by Jen Miller, Erin Kelly and Krisite Dooley. Holly Whitaker converted one kick for SSU.

All around the Salisbury State University women's rugby team closed out their home season with a rousing victory and demonstrated how far the team has come in its short three year history.

Lacrosse Stays Perfect

The Salisbury State University men's lacrosse team went to battle in its annual "War on the Shore" with sixth ranked Washington College on Saturday only to find little resistance from the Shoremen who bowed easily to the Gulls 23-11.

Jason Coffman led the way for the Gulls with game high totals of seven goals and six assists. His totals pushed him closer to the all-time Division III goals and points records.

Coffman now needs 18 goals and 13 points to break each record.

The win against the Shoremen was the sixty-third regular season victory in a row and the forty-fifth overall as the Gulls upped their record to 12-0 this season. It was the Shoremen who last beat Salisbury in the 1993 Division III tournament.

The Salisbury attack jumped on the Shoremen early and never allowed them to come close in the game. Coffman scored the games first goal which was matched by the Shoremen but SSU answered with four unanswered goals to push the lead to 5-1.

The Gulls got an all around offensive effort from its team with seven people scoring on the day. Mike Austin had six goals, Jake Bergey put in four of his own, Darin Gallagher had two and Paul Smith, Erik Andersen and Dennis Leonard each had one goal apiece. The Gulls had 51 shots on the day and controlled the ground balls with a 50-45 advantage.

Stash Rote picked up 14 saves on the way to victory and junior Anthony Tufano had three in the fourth quarter for the Gulls.

Depending on the outcome of Washington's game next weekend, SSU may play the Shoremen again in the first round of the NCAA tournament. The Shoremen face Washington and Lee and a win could pit the two shore teams against one another.

The Sea Gulls finish up their regular season on Saturday at home against Western Maryland. The game is at Sea Gull Stadium with a 1:00 pm starting time.

Men's Track Wins Third CAC Title In a Row Women Finish a Strong Second

Elizabeth Pagel
Flyer Staff Writer

The Salisbury State University men's track team claimed first place overall in the Capital Athletic Conference championships this weekend, besting Mary Washington College with a score of 93 to 84.

There were a number of excellent performances and first place finishes that contributed to this victory from the field and on the track. The 4x100m relay team won first in a time of 44.2 seconds, Jeff Hankins was a repeat conference champion in the 3000m steeplechase, Rob Palmer was first in the 100m hurdles and second in the 400m hurdles, and Deion Jones was first in the 400m dash with a 51.9. In the field, Karl Gilliam claimed second in the high jump, Mike Okoh was second in the long jump and Eddie Houck was first in the pole vault.

The women's team also faced strong competition from Mary Washington College, and despite their phenomenal effort to defeat this perennial adversary, SSU came in second by the score of 100-70. Kelly Delp became a two time conference champion, first in the 1500m with a 4:59 and again in the 800m with a time of 2:26. Jenn Harrison claimed first in the 400m hurdles and second in the triple jump and 100m hurdles. Kristin Wimbrow won the high jump, clearing 5'2" and Emily Hackett won the javelin with a throw of 101'5". Becky Tregoning threw a 117'0" in the hammer for the conference title and a new meet record.

Coach Latham feels that both teams did extremely well against the competition, stating that it was a long day in the heat and the sun. "Many athletes competed in multiple events and hit personal bests. On the men's side, their performances earned them the title. Everyone made great sacrifices for the team, for the men to win and the women to claim second."

Coach Latham was voted men's team CAC Coach of the Year, and Kelly Delp was the runner-up for CAC Athlete of the Meet for the women. Mason Dixon Conference Championships will be held in two weeks at Mary Washington College.

Ed.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park) and report to a faculty marshal in that corridor. M.A., M.S. and M.B.A candidates will report to DR. STEVE GEHNRIK. You will line up according to his direction, alphabetically by degree, and will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle. M. Ed. candidates are to report to DR. JACK WULFF and line up alphabetically at his direction. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle. DRESS CODE: This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor. The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is: Women: Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light. No visible jewelry. Sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage. Men: Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light colored sport shoes with thick rubber soles. Dark colored socks - no white athletic socks. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color. Dress shirt, preferably white or a light color. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.) Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well. Both: The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) NO DECORATION OF ANY KIND IS TO BE PLACED ON THE MORTARBOARD. Honors students will have a gold and white hood. It is to be worn with the gold side out and the white inner lining turned out at the top, over the gold (like a collar). Gold cords would be worn under the honors hood. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President (and/or your faculty marshal). Candidates for the master's degree should place tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate who should face the audience and bend down a little. Faculty marshals will give you more specific information. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Chappell Studio, Inc. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future. Candidates should not chew gum or tobacco. Graduation Decorum:

Graduation ceremonies are, by their very nature, festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long, hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Phi Beta Sigma

After more than five years of being inactive, Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity Incorporated resurfaced on Salisbury State's campus last semester. Already the men of Theta Kappa are busy making a difference in nearby communities as service is one of the Fraternities key principles.

The main project the four energetic men have taken on deals with a group of sixth graders at Fruitland intermediate School. The Sigmas have adopted the student as little brother. They meet each week with the boys and schedule activities for them.

The Sigmas are also making their presence known on campus this semester. We have thrown two parties in the University Center and performed a mini step show in front of the dining hall. Our step team has also participated in the University variety show on April 12. We will be participating in the march of Dimes Walk-a-thon on April 28. We will also be sponsoring a program on May 2 in Caruthers Room 122. All students, faculty, and staff are invited.

Theta kappa has much more in store for the campus and the surrounding community. We'll keep you posted on the activities of the blue and white.
